

English Teaching Method in the First Year Students on the Faculty of Computer Science (1KB02) at Gunadarma University

Yesica Hermita¹
Romel Noverino²

Program Studi Sastra Inggris
Fakultas Sastra
Universitas Gunadarma
July 2008

Jl. Margonda Raya 100 Depok
romel@staff.gunadarma.ac.id

ABSTRACT

English is very important to be learned by many people in the world especially for Indonesian people where they do not speak it in their daily life. Today, English has become a second language by most of people. It is also used in many aspects such as in the Economic, politic, social, culture, and mainly in Education. The aims of the study are to explain about the kinds of teaching method that are used and the writer also would like to describe the difficulties encountered by the lecturer in teaching English in the first year students on the Faculty of Computer Science (1KB02) at Gunadarma University. To get the specific data, the writer uses two kinds of methods, which are field research (observation and interview with the lecturer of 1KB02 at Gunadarma University) and library research (search and read the books and resources to get more specific and complete data to shove this research paper). The methods of teaching English that applied at the Faculty of Computer Science (1KB02) at Gunadarma University are direct method and communicative method. The difficulties that encountered by the lecturer are the amount of the class that is too many, and the ability of the students that is not the same. The result from the research at Gunadarma University with those methods are available to used for students of (1KB02) because the materials will be easier to be understood by the students.

Keywords: English teaching method, English teaching materials