MOTIVATION AND DECISION MAKING PROCESS OF BECOMING A PARISH PRIEST.

Dianing Wahyu Putri, Dra. M.M. Nilam Widyarini, M.

Undergraduate Program, 2006

Gunadarma University
http://www.gunadarma.ac.id

Key Words: MOTIVATION, DECISION MAKING, parish priest

ABSTRACT:
This study aimed to determine the factors that influence motivation and decision making process for someone to become a parish priest. The approach used in this study is a qualitative approach, because it can provide appreciation, experiences and perceptions of a deeper understanding of the phenomenon that want to reveal it. Characteristics of subjects in this study was the parish priest who was a permanent member of a religious institution (religious orders or congregations), particular. While data collection techniques used were interviews and observations of behavior and self carriage during an interview subject. The results showed that there are factors that influence the motivation for someone to become a parish priest as the desire of the subject appears to be a priest since they were kids, aiming to serve the people and the totality of selfless service with all our heart, and family religious background.